DELPHI ANNOUNCES 2012 SCHOLARSHIP AWARD RECIPIENTS

Today, the Delphi Foundation is pleased to announce the fourth annual Academic Scholarship recipients. These recipients were first announced at the Delta Lambda Phi National Convention in Portland, OR in July. This year the Foundation has awarded two $500 scholarships along with two additional $350 scholarships, all to outstanding applicants. These applicants come from different backgrounds and disciplines, but are all outstanding representatives from their community. Our recipients for 2012 are:

$500 scholarships:

Br. Joel Durham, Southern Illinois University – Edwardsville (Edwardsville, IL)

Br. Edward Smith, North Carolina Central University (Durham, NC)

$350 scholarships:

Br. Oscar Beltran, University of Texas at El Paso (El Paso, TX)

Colonist Ben Sokoloff, Michigan State University (East Lansing, MI)

Br. Joel Durham is a graduate student at SIUE completing a Masters of Public Administration. He has been involved in numerous community service activities, including projects around campus, the local community, and various levels of Delta Lambda Phi fraternity leadership roles. His work with these organizations combined with a strong academic standing makes him an outstanding representation of a well-rounded leader.

Br. Edward Smith is a graduate student at North Carolina Central University completing a Masters of Social Work. This is his second time receiving a Delphi scholarship, as he was one of the very first awards in 2008. Since that time he has continued to show the leadership aspects of a Lambda Man through his work in his church, local community organizations, and personal academic achievement.

For these achievements and those that we have not seen yet, the Delphi Foundation is pleased to support the academic achievement of these outstanding Lambda Men. They represent the types of scholastic achievement, community involvement, charitable service, and proven leadership skills that are the foundation of what it means to be a Lambda Man. These men represent characteristics the Delphi Foundation strives to foster within Delta Lambda Phi and the community as a whole.
